Mission Statement:

To provide low-cost natural power to your community

About us:

Eden Renewables is providing low-cost natural power to communities across New York while making a positive impact on the local environment. Based in Troy, we are currently developing community solar farms for the benefit of Upstate NY residents. Our holistic approach ensures that the people living and working near our solar farms get the full benefits of locally generated, clean power, and the chance to save 10% on their electricity bills. Our pollinator-friendly solar farms also establish wildflower meadows around the panels which help support local agriculture.
